Biography or Historical Sketch

Established on February 9, 2005, the Get the Lead Out Coalition worked to prevent the reopening of the American Smelting and Refining Company smelter (ASARCO) and publicized its threat to the environment and public health. The Coalition was comprised of members from various community organizations: Mothers Against ASARCO, Students Against ASARCO, Anapra, SAA, and UTEP. The Board of Directors included: Yvette Ramirez Ammerman, Juan Garza, Summer Luciano, Leon Kababie, Sean Crowley, Philip Del Rio, Mariana Chew, Jaqueline Barragan, Neysa Hardin, Senator Eliot Shapleigh, and Loretta Akers. In particular, the Get the Lead Out Coalition protested the renewal of ASARCO's air permit in the mid-2000s. Coalition members traveled to Austin and participated in several hearings before the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ). The group also organized anti-ASARCO protests and publicity campaigns that often involved local political leaders in El Paso, Ciudad Juárez, and Sunland Park, New Mexico. Although ASARCO's air quality permit was approved by the TCEQ, the smelter closed down permanently in 2009 after filing for bankruptcy. The polluting smokestacks were torn down in 2013.
